It's the sound of 5-metre swells at Cave Rock that command surfers' respect and tube-riding skills. It's the sound of vervet monkeys chattering in a nature reserve.

The sound of ships' horns as, guided by the Millennium Tower, they enter the largest harbour in Africa. The sound of cannons on the Bluff blasting out to sea during World War II. The cry of the Luthuli tribe, who made the first human settlement in the Durban area. The sound of curry bubbling gently in a large pot in the homes of Indians forced in a

The joy of slaves, intercepted and released before being sold at their traders' destination of Zanzibar. The sound of history.

Inanda, Ntuzuma and KwaMashu

The Inanda Heritage Route winds its way through the Inanda Valley, taking in some of Durban's most important, albeit little-known, historical sites. It provides a snapshot of critical South African history as well as, perhaps surprisingly, India's past.

But it was the events that unfolded at the turn of the century that shaped Inanda's future. Mahatma Gandhi, who was then a lawyer, arrived in the region to represent an Indian client. After being thrown off a train for sitting in a 'whites only' section, Gandhi stayed on here and started his passive resistance movement.

ATTRACTIONS

The Inanda Heritage Route (Inanda Tourism 031 322 2856) contains some of Durban's most significant historical sites, many of which stand today as important landmarks along the country's road to democracy.

An important site in the struggle for justice, peace and equality in South Africa, the Phoenix Settlement (073 055 5860) was founded by Mahatma Gandhi in 1904. It is also where the country's first Indian newspaper, the 'Indian Opinion', was printed until its closure in 1961.

The Inanda Seminary for Girls (082 374 5192) was founded in 1869. It was the first school of its kind for black girls in southern Africa, and remained an independent mission school throughout the apartheid years, producing some of the nation's most influential black women.

The Ohlange Institute – first known as the Zulu Christian Industrial School – was established in 1900 by Reverend John Dube, who was also the first president of the African National Congress. Launched in 2011, the Wushwini Pan African Centre for Arts, Culture and Heritage (073 957 9275) is situated at KwaNgcolosi, near the beautiful Inanda Dam. Supported by the KZN Department of Arts and Culture, and Eager Artists (the permanent residency artists), the centre boasts a 100-seater theatre, art gallery, heritage room, film studio, recording studio, open air theatre, storytelling arena, office block, restaurant, library and multi-purpose hall.

The Ekuphakameni Shembe Settlement is the first settlement of Isaiah Shembe's religious community of Ibandla LamaNazaretha, and houses the original temple built in 1918 by Shembe volunteers. Established in 1980 on the plateau of Mtabutule by Bishop Amos Khula Shembe, the Ebhuhleni Shembe Settlement is home to the Ebuhleni Shembe International Church, which broke away from the original Shembe community in 1976. Situated near Inanda Dam, the settlement is almost a kilometre in diameter. Covering an area of 1 463 hectares, the Inanda Dam is an important water reservoir as well as being a popular water sports and recreation site which is known for its bass fishing.

SHOPPING

Boasting Shoprite as an anchor tenant, Dube Village Mall (031 519 0302) situated at 11 Ikhathazo Way also has a number of retail outlets, eateries and a salon, as well as ATMs and banks.

Situated in the new hub of Bridge City, which connects the communities of Phoenix with Inanda, Ntuzuma and KwaMashu, the two-storey Bridge City Shopping Centre is built on top of the PRASA train station and contains a food court with Chicken Licken, KFC, Spur, Nandos and more, anchor tenants Shoprite and Superspar, not to mention other big names like Edgars, Woolworths, Pep and Totalsports, and banking outlets Nedbank, Absa, Capitec and FNB.
